

Why digital literacy become my necessity

Digital literacy is having the skills you need to live, learn, and work in a society where communication and access to information is increasingly through digital technologies like internet platforms, social media, and mobile devices. As we are marching toward more advanced world, the infrastructure and framework of the whole country are built on digital technologies. So, digital literacy plays an important role in our everyday life. Digital literacy requires a variety of strategies and skills, including critical thinking (questioning how authentic, valid and useful digital information is), communicating and collaborating with others in the digital space, using digital tools to design and create compelling original content, using digital tools to access, use and share information. Moreover digital literacy benefits both learning and citizenship. As I am a university student, having digital literacy knowledge and skills is a must. Having those skills not only allows me to analyze and combine information to develop my own understanding but also create and share digital contents in purposeful ways. Digital literacy will also be really important in the future when I enter the professional world. In my workplace I'll be required to interact with people in digital environments, use information in appropriate ways, and create new ideas and projects collaboratively. For now, to keep up with the digital world, I always need to build my knowledge about digital tools and skills. And the school library and staff play a critical role in building those skills. When I was in my hometown, I usually order food online (which is one of the digital literacy skills) as I am extremely lazy guy. Apart from food, I also do online shopping, check my emails and use online search engine to complete my projects and assignments which requires those digital skills and tools. Then I also share those skills with my family, especially my mom and grandparents, teaching them how to use social media platforms and some applications. Therefore, I have to keep in touch with those kinds of technologies each and every day and digital literacy become my necessity.
